Tech Transfer

Tech Transfer

Technology Transfer is the process of transferring knowledge and materials from one organization to another to promote the further development and commercialization of technology.

What is Technology Transfer?

Technology Transfer is the process of transferring knowledge and materials from one organization to another to promote the further development and commercialization of technology.

NCI's Technology Transfer Center (TTC) manages technology transfer for intramural and extramural investigators

- Each lab has a Technology Transfer Manager (TTM) assigned to it
- To find your TTM:

How you can work with TTC:

Talk with us about ways to promote development of your inventions and ideas or to facilitate research collaborations

- When you want to collaborate with an outside (or inside) party to develop a technology
 - Confidential Disclosure Agreement (CDA)
 - Collaboration Agreement (CA)
 - Cooperative Research and Development Agreement (CRADA)
- When you have an invention to report (or if you're unsure, contact your TTM)
 - Employee Invention Report (EIR)
 - Timing is important!
 - Contact your TTM 3 months before any public disclosure (abstract, publication, presentation, etc.)
 - o Patenting
 - Maintain your research notebooks in a manner that supports patenting
 - Update TTC about scientific projects related to patent-pending technologies
 - Licensing
 - Forward licensing leads or inquiries from commercial entities
- When you want to send or receive materials and/or data
 - Material Transfer Agreement (MTA)
 - Data Transfer Agreement (DTA)
- When you want to run a clinical trial
 - Clinical Trial Agreement (CTA)
 - Clinical CRADĂ
